

SAMMY RANE — "Different View" TEASER (LA Arrival / Second Brother)

Song: LANDR-Different View-Full-Band-Warm-Low (source master)

Music bed: different_view_teaser_bed_optionC_55s.mp3 (song 123.0s → 178.0s)

Runtime: 55 seconds

Aspect: 2520x1080 (cinemascope, matches Brad Ghost teaser)

Theme: Change of perspective — Sammy is itching to get out of a small, closed-minded town, hits LA, and finds everything the town warned him about (the people, the women, the drugs, the nights) is where his eyes open. The person he was taught to fear becomes his brother. Not ambition. Unlearning, and it's intoxicating.

Tone guardrail: This is the night it's still fun. Seduction, not consequence. The bill comes due in the Damage and Cost teasers, not here.

Voices used: DAD (one line, the town's voice, top of teaser) + SAMMY (one line, bottom of teaser). THE ROOMMATE HAS NO LINES. His face is the line.

The roommate: Sammy's Jamaican bandmate (cast entry jamaican_guitarist, voice fD9eefCRBxmHIsIjJ3aw). The kid he shared a place with in LA is the guitarist standing next to him on stage today. Face reveal at 0:23, then he's on the club stage with a guitar in Beats 6 and 7. Silent in this teaser; his voice is saved for a later one.

v3 changes from v2: 3-second cold open of Sammy itching to leave (pickup bed, Dad's line, engine turns over). Dad's line and Sammy's answer widened from "those people" to everything the town warned about. Beats 5-6 montage rewritten as the LA fast lane (women, drugs, whiskey, neon) with the roommate present through all of it. Face reveal, match cut, title unchanged.

SCRIPT (locked to music timing)

BEAT 1 — "Hit the highway blue" [0:00 → 0:05]

Song lyric: "Hit the highway blue and I landed out west" (0:00-0:05)

Visual [0:00-0:03] — THE ITCH: Gray pre-dawn. Sammy, 19, sitting in the bed of a parked pickup at the edge of town, boots hanging off the tailgate, staring at a two-lane road that goes nowhere he's been. Behind him: a sagging porch, a faded flag, a church sign with missing letters. Nobody awake. He isn't sad. He's done.

VO — DAD (flat, matter-of-fact, no anger, the way people say things they've never questioned), over the town shot:

"Ain't nothing out there for you but trouble, son."

(This is "every word our fathers used." Said plainly. He believes it. That's what makes it land.)

At 0:03: Sammy drops off the tailgate. An engine turns over, off-screen.

Cut

0 : 03

: WIDE LOW-ANGLE. Long empty highway at dawn. A single old dusty car kicks dust into golden light. Just wheels, dust, road. The Dad line is still hanging in the air.

Cut ~0:04: LA skyline through the windshield in hazy heat-warped focus. Palm trees. Arriving.

On-screen: none

BEAT 2 — "Didn't know a soul" [0:05 → 0:11]

Song lyric: "Didn't know a soul, just a chip on my chest" (0:08-0:11)

Visual: LA at street level. Sammy's silhouette from behind — long hair, worn jacket, duffle bag over shoulder — walking a crowded Sunset sidewalk. Everyone else in the frame is moving fast, blurred. He is still. Alone in the crowd.

Cut ~0:09: TIGHT on his hand — knuckles, calluses, a wound-up energy. A cigarette between fingers.

VO: none

BEAT 3 — "Shared a place with a kid" [0:11 → 0:19]

Song lyric: "Shared a place with a kid nothing like me" (0:15-0:19)

Visual: INTERIOR — a shitty LA apartment. Peeling paint, one guitar leaning against a wall, mattress on the floor. Sammy sits on the floor, back against the wall, tuning a guitar. In the background, out of focus, THE ROOMMATE (the Jamaican bandmate) is at a small table, laughing at something on a phone, a second guitar case by his chair. Shape and silhouette only, face soft/out of focus — we're saving the face for Beat 4. He is "a kid nothing like me": Jamaican, easy, nothing like the town Sammy just left. Casting note for Kling: a real person, not a costume. No props signalling "Jamaican." Just him.

Cut ~0:17: Two cheap beers on the coffee table, condensation.

VO: none — song is doing the work

BEAT 4 — "Found a brother in a face that set me free" [0:19 → 0:26]

Song lyric: "Found a brother in a face that set me free" (0:23–0:26)

Visual

0 : 19–0 : 23

: The roommate, backlit against the window, sunset behind him, face still in shadow. He turns his head toward Sammy.

At 0:23 — exactly on the word "face": the light catches him and we SEE HIM. Clear. Close. Ordinary. Grinning at something Sammy said. This is the first fully-lit face in the teaser, and it isn't Sammy's. That's deliberate. The face the town warned him about is the one that set him free.

Cut ~0:25: Sammy's face, close, half-lit. Not smiling. But something has softened. He's looking at his friend.

VO: NONE. Nobody says anything here. The lyric "found a brother in a face that set me free" is the only voice. Any line we put in the roommate's mouth turns him into a message. He's not a message. He's a guy.

BEAT 5 — "Walked those LA streets" [0:26 → 0:35]

Song lyric: "We walked those LA streets where it was all new" (0:32–0:35)

Visual — THE FAST LANE BEGINS. MONTAGE, 3 cuts, ~2s each:

1. [0:26] Sammy and the roommate walking down a neon-lit alley at night toward a club door with a line out front. The roommate knows the bouncer. They skip the line.
2. [0:29] Sunset Strip storefronts blurred past a car window at speed, a girl's bare feet on the dash.
3. [0:32] A dive bar. Sammy at the bar, the roommate slides a whiskey toward him, a woman leans in to light Sammy's cigarette. He lets her.

Music note: at 0:32, BRIDGE KICKS IN — drums arrive, energy lifts. Cuts get faster from here.

VO: none

BEAT 6 — "Every corner" [0:35 → 0:43]

Song lyric: "Every corner full of stories I never knew" (0:35–0:39) / "Yeah, mine is open to the real truth" (0:39–0:43)

Visual: FAST LANE CONTINUES, 5 fast cuts on the beat, each one a "story I never knew":

1. [0:35] A girl's hand pulling Sammy by the wrist through a packed club, strobe, her looking back at him laughing.
2. [0:37] A stranger's apartment, 3am. Lines on a mirror, a credit card, Sammy's reflection in the glass. The roommate is on the couch behind him with a guitar, not judging, playing.
3. [0:39] Hollywood Hills rooftop party at sunrise. Sammy shirtless in a pool, cigarette dry above the water, city waking up behind him. A woman asleep on a lounge.
4. [0:41] A small club stage, daytime. Sammy with a guitar, sound-checking to an empty room, hungover, sunglasses on. One work light. The roommate at stage left with his guitar, tuning. They're a band now.
5. [0:43] Sammy at the mic in the same empty club — eyes closed, one hand gripping the stand. Sunglasses off.

Lyric note: "eyes open to the real truth" lands at 0:40 under the rooftop-pool shot. That's on purpose. The real truth isn't a lesson. It's that the world is bigger and better than they told him.

BEAT 7 — THE TURN [0:43 → 0:53]

Song lyric: "Now I see it clear, boys" (0:44–0:47) / "The rest is up to you" (0:48–0:52)

Visual: SLOW PUSH-IN on Sammy at that empty club mic. He opens his eyes. Looks straight into camera for the first time in the teaser.

At 0:48 (right on "The rest is up to you"): CUT TO — same shot but now the club is PACKED. Roaring. Phone lights up. The empty room became a crowd between blinks. Sammy is still holding the mic, and the roommate is right there at stage left with his guitar, lit now. He's not the kid on the highway anymore, and the kid nothing like him is in the band.

VO — SAMMY (on stage, close-mic, dry, dark, dead-level — same delivery as "Pain."):

"They were right about the trouble. ... Wrong about everything else."

(This answers Dad's line from 0:00 directly. Dad said "nothing out there but trouble." Sammy concedes the trouble and takes the rest. Covers the women, the drugs, the nights, and the roommate in one breath without naming any of them. The pause is the whole teaser. Land "everything else" at ~0:51 so it sits inside the song's "the rest is up to you.")

Alt line, tighter on the roommate:

"He wasn't like us. ... Thank God."

(Use this if Dan wants the payoff to be about the brother, not the whole city.)

Dropped from v1: the doubled-vocal idea (Sammy speaking "the rest is up to you" over the song singing it). Cute trick, wrong teaser. The payoff here is Sammy answering his father, not echoing the chorus.

BEAT 8 — TITLE [0:53 → 0:55]

Music note: at 0:55, the chorus is ABOUT to kick in — we cut before it does. Cliffhanger.

Visual: HARD CUT TO BLACK. Two seconds of silence. Then:

On-screen (serif, same treatment as Brad Ghost):

SAMMY RANE
"Different View"
coming soon

Hold 2 seconds. End on black.

#	Speaker	Voice ID	Line	Notes
1	DAD	3WV7oyfzrBJn54i1yFH5 (Sammy Dad — mid 50s, man of few words)	"Ain't nothing out there for you but trouble, son."	Flat, plain, unquestioned. NOT a villain read. He believes it. Style=0. Dan generates.
2	SAMMY	9hxACPap0Pyc0bOZREHQ (stability 0.4, sim 0.85)	"They were right about the trouble. ... Wrong about everything else."	Dead-level, dry. Real pause in the middle. Same register as "Pain." Style=0. Dan generates. Alt: "He wasn't like us. ... Thank God."
—	ROOMMATE (Jamaican bandmate)	fD9eefCRBxmhIsIjJ3aw (held, not used here)	none	No lines in this teaser. Face reveal at 0:23 is his whole part. His voice is a later teaser.

Shots needed from Kling

#	Beat	Shot	Reference / Notes
0	1	Sammy (19) sitting in the bed of a parked pickup at the edge of town, pre-dawn, boots off the tailgate, staring down an empty two-lane. Sagging porch, faded flag, church sign behind him. He drops off the tailgate at the end.	3 seconds. The itch. Sammy Element, younger styling if possible.
1	1	Empty highway at dawn, single dusty car, wide low angle	Golden-hour hero — could reuse a stock-style Kling gen
2	1b	LA skyline through windshield, heat haze	POV shot

#	Beat	Shot	Reference / Notes
3	2	Sammy from behind, walking Sunset in crowd, everyone else blurred motion	Long hair, jacket, duffle
4	2b	Tight on Sammy's calloused hand + cigarette	Reuse from existing Kling archive? Check <code>dan_shot_divebar_mic_cigarette.mp4</code>
5	3	Shitty LA apartment interior, Sammy tuning guitar, Jamaican roommate laughing in bg (soft focus), second guitar case by his chair	Character consistency shot — Sammy face reference + first glimpse of roommate
6	3b	Two beers on coffee table, condensation, shallow focus	Simple detail shot
7	4	Jamaican roommate backlit at window, turns his head, light catches his face — FULL CLEAR FACE REVEAL, grinning	The single most important shot in the teaser. First lit face on screen. Create a Roommate Element in Kling so he matches shots 5, 11, 13, 16, 17.
8	4b	Sammy face close, half-lit, softened but not smiling, looking at his friend	Character consistency — matches BRAD GHOST teaser Sammy
9	5a	Sammy + roommate walking neon alley toward a club door, skip the line, roommate nods to bouncer	Both Elements, night, wet street
10	5b	Sunset Strip through moving car window blur, a girl's bare feet on the dash	Motion/speed shot
11	5c	Dive bar, roommate slides Sammy a whiskey, a woman leans in and lights his cigarette	Could reuse <code>dan_shot_whiskey_hand.mp4</code> for the slide

12b	6b	Stranger's apartment 3am, lines on a mirror, Sammy's reflection, roommate on couch behind playing guitar	Both Elements. Kling may refuse drug imagery; fallback = pill bottle and whiskey on the mirror, or just the mirror reflection and a razor sound.
12c	6c	Hollywood Hills rooftop pool at sunrise, Sammy shirtless in the water, cigarette held dry, woman asleep on a lounge	Sammy Element. Hero shot of the montage.
13	6d	Empty club, daytime, Sammy hungover in sunglasses with guitar, roommate stage left tuning, one work light	Both Elements.
15	6e	Sammy at mic in empty club, sunglasses off, eyes closed, gripping stand
16	7a	Push-in on same mic shot, Sammy opens eyes to camera	Same setup as 15, extends into eye opening
17	7b	SAME SHOT but packed club, phones up, crowd roaring, roommate lit at stage left with guitar	Match cut — cinematography must be identical to 16

#	Beat	Shot	Reference / Notes
18	8	Black + serif title card	Post-production, not Kling

Total new shots to generate: ~19. Some reusable from Brad Ghost archive. Crumpled-setlist and rooftop-notebook shots from v2 are cut.

Kling generation strategy

Now that we have Kling MCP live with 7,525 credits:

1. Create a Sammy Element FIRST using the best Sammy reference frame from Brad Ghost teaser (whiskey shot) so character consistency locks across all new shots.
2. Batch generate the montage shots (5a, 5b, 5c, 6a, 6b, 6c, 6d, 9, 10) at Kling v3 turbo — these are simpler.
3. Hero shots (4, 4b, 7a, 7b) at Kling v3 omni multi-image — best quality with Sammy character reference locked.
4. Silhouette shots (7 = roommate silhouette) — text-to-video, no character ref needed.
5. Kling native audio: OFF for all — we're scoring to the music bed.

What makes this teaser different from Brad Ghost

- Brad Ghost = loss. Interior, intimate, a dead brother, ends in a stadium.
- Different View = unlearning, and it feels great. A town's voice at the top, a stranger's face in the middle, the fast lane on the bridge, Sammy's answer at the bottom.

The frame is Dad's warning and Sammy's answer. Everything between them is the trouble he was warned about turning out to be his life. The match cut (empty club → packed club) still carries the visual arc, but the payload is the answer, not the crowd.

What this teaser is NOT: a Rocky story, a cautionary tale, or a lesson. Nobody tells Sammy he's going to make it. Nobody gives a speech. Nobody pays for anything yet. The town gets three seconds. We show one face, one city, and let the lyric say what it did.

Rules maintained

- One theme + 2 voices (Dad + Sammy only; roommate silent)
- Never sanitize emotional truth
- Sammy voice stability 0.4, sim 0.85, style 0
- 2520x1080 cinemascope
- Music builds through the whole teaser to the "rest is up to you" peak, Sammy's answer lands inside it
- Hard cut cliffhanger before chorus (audience wants more)
